

THE ROMANS ARE INVADING

In Forest Schools, Yew discovered that Boudicca, leader of the Celtic tribe Iceni had been spotted in the forest. We made portraits of Boudicca so that we would know what she looks like – she was a fearsome warrior and we wanted to be prepared!

We also made shelters for our legion of soldiers. Emperor Perkins tested to see if our shelters were waterproof. The rainy weather in Britain is very different from the weather back home in Italy.

Here is what some of our soldiers have to say about Forest Schools:

'I love making the Roman fence because I am working with my friends to build something'

'It doesn't matter about the weather because it's so much fun to learn outside'

'I like doing art inside so I loved making our Boudicca pictures outside'.
